Britain: Friend of Foe?

The truth nowadays is that Germany is rearming with the help of Britain, so the question is: Is Britain doing things OK by helping to rearm Germany? We don't want this, the rearmament of Germany, but without the support of our ally Britain we can't do anything.

Britain made the mistake of raising the navy of Germany 35 % more without consulting us and may be in the future this will affect us and Britain. Another thing that Britain "forgot" is that Germany betrayed us in Abyssinia and we have to take revenge for that.

We know that Britain thinks that the Treaty was too harsh on Germany and that the rearmament of Germany is a good way to avoid Communism but they should know that at this moment Germany is our enemy and we need a weak enemy.

We all know that we are not at war but for prevention we need to have a better army than Germany in case there is a war.

The last thing we want to say is that we are angry with Britain but we are going to continue being allies.

This image shows exactly that we think about the decision of Britain.
